CUSTOMIZED CLASSIFICATION OF INDIVIDUAL CONSUMPTION
ACCORDING TO PURPOSE
(COICOP)

The Rwanda Classification Manual, 2014 edition
The Rwanda Classification Manual, 2014 edition

Foreword

Timely and reliable statistics are considered essential for evidence-based policy and decision-making and for better support to policy implementation, monitoring progress and evaluation of outcomes and impacts of development initiatives such as the Vision 2020 Programme, the Economic Development and Poverty Reduction Strategy (EDPRS), and the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs). These initiatives have accordingly resulted in an unprecedented increase in demand for statistics as policy makers and other stakeholders seek information on national development.

One of the major challenges to successful implementation of the Rwanda development agenda lies in the ability to measure progress and to respond to data needs emerging from current national initiatives aimed at promoting economic and social development in the country.

This classification manual is designed to serve as a standard tool for statistical practitioners in their endeavors to produce required statistics on the social, political, and economic situation of Rwanda. The aim of this publication should be to serve as a convenient volume for statistical reference and as a guide to other statistical publication and sources.

This first edition shows now the available codes for the Classification of Individual Consumption according to Purpose (COICOP), adapted to Rwandan situation.

Users of the Classification Manual are urged to make their information needs known for consideration in planning future editions. We are confident that this Classification Manual will become key guidelines in furnishing a wide range of development information on Rwanda.

Acknowledgments

The Rwanda Customised Classification of Individual Consumption according to Purpose (COICOP) was prepared by the National Institute of Statistics (NISR) through a team comprising APELL Derek - Principal Statistician in charge of sampling and classification, NTAGENGERWA Bonus- Economic Statistics Classification Officer and Pauline KEZAKIMANA - Intern. The Team was under the supervision of Dominique HABIMANA, Director of Statistical Methods, research and publication unit, and the overall coordination under the general direction of Yusuf MURANGWA, Director General, NISR.

The Assessment of this manual relied on cooperation with Census Unit Staff whose contribution is gratefully acknowledged.

DETAILED CLASSIFICATION STRUCTURE OF COICOP DIVISION 01-12 8

Uses of the classification

1. COICOP is an integral part of the 1993 SNA, but it is also intended for use in three other statistical areas: household budget surveys, consumer price indices and international comparisons of gross domestic product (GDP) and its component expenditures. For all these uses, the basic COICOP classification will need to be made more detailed by further subdivision of the classes, but there are clear advantages, in terms of comparability between countries and between statistics in these different areas, if the basic structure of COICOP is maintained. It must be recognized, however, that COICOP follows the concepts and definitions of the 1993 SNA and these are not necessarily appropriate for other applications. For example, in household budget surveys it is not practical to ask households for expenditure on insurance service charges as required by COICOP, and in consumer price indices some countries may include interest on housing loans which is excluded from COICOP.
2. The purposes defined in COICOP are based on the classifications of consumer expenditures which national statistical offices have developed for their own use to serve a variety of analytic applications. Although COICOP is not strictly linked to any particular model of consumer behaviour, the classification is designed to broadly reflect differences in income elasticities. For example, low-income households spend relatively high proportions of their budgets on food, clothing and housing, while richer households spend more on transport, education, health and recreation.
3. COICOP classes are divided into services (S), non-durables (ND), semi-durables (SD) and durables (D). This supplementary classification provides for other analytic applications. For example, it is sometimes useful to estimate the stock of capital goods held by households; goods in COICOP classes that are identified as durables provide the basic elements for such estimates.

4. COICOP is used to identify individual consumption expenditures incurred by three institutional sectors: households, non-profit institutions serving households (NPISHs) and general government. Individual consumption expenditures are those that are made for the benefit of individual persons or households. More specifically:

- All consumption expenditures by households are defined as individual; COICOP Divisions 01 through 12 identify the purposes for which these expenditures are made;
- All consumption expenditures of NPISHs are also treated, by convention, as being for the benefit of individual households; COICOP Division 13 identifies the purposes for which the expenditures of NPISHs are made;
- Only some of the consumption expenditures of general government are defined as individual.
- Expenditures on general public services, defence, public order and safety, economic affairs, environmental protection and housing and community amenities are considered to be for the benefit of the community as a whole rather than for individual households. They are termed collective consumption expenditures (or actual final consumption of general government or actual collective consumption) and are excluded from COICOP. COICOP Division 14 identifies those government expenditures that are regarded as individual and classifies them by purpose, namely; health, education, social protection, recreation and culture.

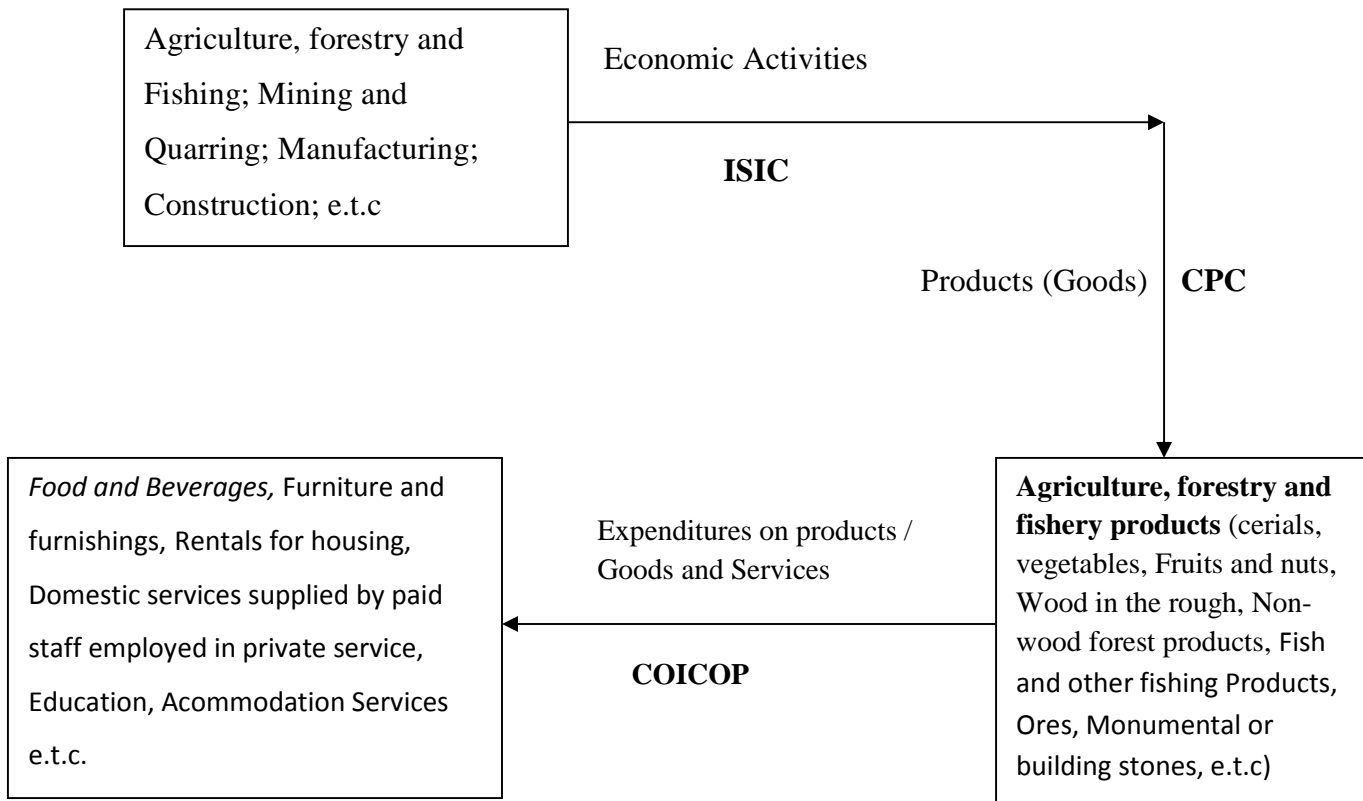

5. In the 1993 SNA, the individual consumption expenditures of both NPISHs and general government are termed social transfers in kind and are added to the individual consumption expenditures of households to obtain an aggregate called actual final consumption of households (or actual individual consumption). By bringing together the relevant expenditures of households, NPISHs and general government, COICOP identifies the expenditures that make up this aggregate and classifies them according to the purposes that they are designed to achieve.

Links between COICOP, Central Product Classification (CPC) and ISIC

The Central Product Classification (CPC) is closely linked with COICOP since expenditures on products are the basic building blocks of COICOP classes. Thus, correspondences can be established between categories of CPC and COICOP.

Economic Activities / Industries are categorized using ISIC (International Standard Industrial Classification of all Economic Activities). However, Products manufactured from Industries or Goods and Services emanating from Economic Activities are classified using CPC (Central Product Classification), whereas COICOP (Classification of Individual Consumption According to Purpose) Classifies Consumer expenditures from products / Goods and Services.

Below is the Schematic Diagram representing the Link between ISIC, CPC and COICOP

Units of classification

For the household consumption expenditures in Divisions 01 through 12, the units of classification are expenditures for the acquisition of consumption of goods and services. The basic data will usually come from one or more of the following sources: household expenditure surveys, statistics on retail sales, and commodity flow estimates which involve allocating the total supply of goods and services to intermediate and final uses. The important point to note is that the units of classification are expenditures on specific goods and services - they are not expenditures on purposes as such. Divisions 01 to 12 of COICOP convert these basic statistics into a purpose classification by grouping together the various goods and services that are deemed to fulfil particular purposes, such as nourishing the body, protecting it against inclement weather, preventing and curing illness, acquiring knowledge, travelling from one place to another, etc.

COICOP EXPLANATORY NOTE FOR DIVISION 01-12

The COICOP Classification is made of 12 Divisions. Each division is made of Group, Class and Sub-class. Each Division, Group, Class and Sub-class is made of two, three, four and five digits respectively, and the sixth digit is added to represent the local items. In this case, the COICOP Rwanda 2014 edition was expanded to 6 digits as indicated in the annex named “The Detailed Classification Structure of COICOP Division 01-12”.

Food and non alcoholic beverages are included in division 01; Alcoholic beverages, tobacco and narcotics are classified in division 02; Clothing and footwear in division 03; Housing, water, electricity, gas and other fuels are classified in Division 04; Furnishings, household equipment and routine maintenance of the house in Division 05; Division 06 is Health; Division 07 is Transport; Division 08 contains Communication; Division 09 includes: Recreation and culture, Division 10 is Education, Division 11 includes Restaurants and hotels and Division 12 is Miscellaneous goods and services.

The annex explains in detail the Group, Class and Sub-class included in each Division, and the local items codes expanded to six digits.
