

This is a new component which will engage students from high schools through their Statistical Clubs, encouraging them to explore, interpret, and communicate statistical information in creative ways. Students will use NISR data to develop innovative outputs such as posters, charts, infographics, presentations, or other forms of data communication. The competition will contribute to building statistical literacy and interest in data among young people.

Save as PDF 